Wiley Partners with Scrivener Publishing

Hoboken, NJ, October 8, 2009— Global publisher John Wiley & Sons, Inc. (NYSE: JWa and JWb) announced today a new partnership with Scrivener Publishing, a provider of book and chapter length material for industry practitioners and academic researchers in the technical applied sciences.

Through the partnership Wiley and Scrivener will co-develop a line of books in the technical and applied sciences that are core to the strategy of STMS physical sciences, covering a range of topics including energy, polymers, chemical processing and others. Content will be made available both in print and electronic formats.

“By joining Wiley in this strategic partnership, Scrivener Publishing is able to concentrate on list building while offering its authors the same global advantages as the large, mature companies. We are proud to be associated with such a great organization,” says Martin Scrivener, President.

“Wiley is pleased to partner with Scrivener, another publisher who is dedicated to providing high-quality content to practitioners and researchers in the technical applied sciences,” says Janet Bailey, Vice President and Publishing Director, STMS Physical Sciences, Americas, Wiley. “Their priorities echo our own commitment to authors and customers.”
